"Seattle's $15 Minimal Wage Effective"

Jan 5, 2017

Duration 00:01:35

Seattle's minimum wage increased to $15 per hour on January 1 for employees working for the largest businesses in the city. Mayor Ed Murray marked the increase today, which is a milestone for the 2014 minimum wage ordinance that called for a phased-in increase of the minimum wage for workers. The ordinance was the first of its kind for a major city to chart a course to a $15 minimum wage.

The wage increase will impact an estimated 70,000 low-wage workers in Seattle. A study by the University of Washington found that one year after implementation; Seattle's economy continues to expand. Data from 2016 also shows that Seattle's unemployment rate continues to fall and currently sits near its lowest level in years.

"City of Seattle Continues as Sanctuary City"

Jan 25, 2017

Duration 00:03:20

Today, as President Donald Trump issued plans build a border wall with Mexico and crack down on cities that offer refuge to undocumented immigrants, vows to fight back were issued by city, county, and federal officials from Seattle.

"I am willing to lose every single penny to protect those people," Murray said of immigrants, refugees, and Muslims, groups that have been the targets of Trump's onslaught of executive orders in recent days.

One of Trump's executive orders, issued today, takes aim at "sanctuary cities," like Seattle, that do not cooperate with federal immigration enforcement. Trump has said he plans to cut federal funding to such cities as a way of coercing them to cooperate with deportations or punishing them if they refuse.

In 2015, Seattle received $85.3 million in federal funding, according to the mayor's office. Of that, nearly $40 million went to the city's Human Services Department. About $15 million went to the city's transportation department, $12 million to the Office of Housing, and $9.4 million to the Seattle Police Department. The rest went to the fire department, public utilities, parks department, and Office of Economic Development.

"Predicted Cold Weather"

Feb 5, 2017

Duration 00:01:25

With weather forecasts predicting temperatures below freezing and possible snow Sunday night through Tuesday, the City of Seattle is preparing for possible accumulations and advising residents to prepare at home and for hazardous travel conditions.

In the event of snow and/or ice, City emergency planners urge residents to prepare their homes for cold weather, build emergency supply kits for homes and vehicles, and not to drive unnecessarily. "Seattle mayor proposes tax on sugary drinks to help fund education"

Feb 21, 2017

Mayor Ed Murray is proposing a sugary drink tax, something that's been done in other major cities. It includes sodas, energy and sports drinks, pre-sweetened teas and coffees and even some fruit drinks.

The ordinance exempts such beverages as 100% fruit juice, in-store prepared coffee beverages, infant formula, medicine, and would NOT apply to "diet" beverages. This proposed ordinance would put a 2-cent tax per ounce on distributors. Distributors say it will likely trickle down to consumers.

The mayor says the tax would fund education and help eliminate the opportunity gap between affluent and poor students -- all while fighting the obesity epidemic by reducing consumption of sugary drinks.

Last year, three cities in California, along with Boulder, Colorado, voted to pass a soda tax measure. They joined Berkeley and Philadelphia, who passed something similar in 2014. However, in 2010, former New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg aggressively tried to pass a tax but failed.

“Inslee says Trump budget “incredibly harmful” to state and local governments”

March 16, 2017

Duration 00:03:10

President Trump today released a federal budget proposal that would make significant cuts in state and local government programs, including education, environmental protection, health care and many other critical services that Washingtonians rely on.

“The budget blueprint issued today by President Trump includes incredibly harmful reductions to education, environmental protection, housing, health care, job training and economic development programs. Deep cuts are also made to research and development – in life sciences, clean energy, and more – that sustain America’s economic leadership in the world,” Gov. Jay Inslee said. “This undercuts our ability to keep our people safe and healthy. The president’s proposal trades away the support needed to build a prosperous economy for working families to instead pay for tax cuts for the wealthy.”

The president’s proposal – which contained very few details compared to a traditional White House budget proposal – deeply cuts or eliminates funding for teacher training and after-school programs, nutrition assistance for low-income women and children, essential disaster mitigation grants for state and local governments, advanced manufacturing and infrastructure, programs and policies aimed at reducing carbon pollution, health research, Puget Sound recovery, and more.

Inslee has asked state agencies to review the president’s budget blueprint to better determine impacts to state services and programs, and will engage with members of Congress as it begins to consider next year’s spending bills.

“Seattle files lawsuit against President Trump’s ‘sanctuary cities’ executive order”

March 29, 2017

Duration 00:02:27

Today, the City of Seattle, under the direction of Mayor Ed Murray and City Attorney Pete Holmes, filed a lawsuit against President Donald Trump’s “sanctuary cities” Executive Order. The order threatened to strip federal funding from cities that refused to assist the federal government in immigration enforcement and was reiterated by Attorney General Jeff Sessions this week. In this suit, the City of Seattle seeks a declaration that it is acting consistently with federal law and that the U.S. Constitution precludes application of the Order to deny it federal funds to which it is otherwise entitled. Seattle, a welcoming city where City employees do not inquire about immigration status and where all services are available to every resident, will argue the order is unconstitutional and that the City has not violated federal law.
